For over 50 years, Indian Valley Industries has actively been in the business of tarp manufacturing. Although some may be unfamiliar with our history, we've built a reputation on quality and service, with a specialty on custom specifications.

Our manufacturing processes are setup for large or small size containment systems and typically include high-quality features including reinforced webbing, reinforced corners, and grommet application to specification. We source a wide variety of fabrics for manufacturing that can meet any state, federal or local specification.

We create value by matching the project requirements to the best possible price. We then ship the goods when and where you need them, quickly and conveniently. This level of service extends across the country and around the globe.

CUSTOM FABRICATION

Many of the containment systems we manufacture are built around a custom design. We produce many systems for large and unusual structures. Over the years, we've built tarps for many construction needs.

Whether the need is for more general requirements such as debris netting, windscreens, and scaffold enclosures to more specialized requirements like debris tunnels, roof bonnets, and industrial curtains, Indian Valley is a trusted source for standard and custom work.
